This Notice of Privacy Practices describes how we may use and disclose your protected health information to carry out treatment, payment or health care operations and for other purposes that are permitted or required by law. It also describes your rights to access and control your protected health information. "Protected health information" (or "PHI" for short) is information about you, including demographic information, that may identify you and that relates to your past, present or future physical or mental health or condition and related health care services including the payment for your health care.

We are required by law to maintain the privacy of your PHI and to provide you with this notice informing you of our legal duties and privacy practices with respect to your PHI. We are required to abide by the terms of this Notice of Privacy Practices. We may change the terms of our notice, at any time. The new notice will be effective for all PHI that we maintain at that time. Upon your request, we will provide you with any revised Notice of Privacy Practices at the time of your next appointment. We will also post the revised notice in our office.

I. Uses and Disclosures of Protective Health Information

A. We may use and disclose your PHI for treatment, payment and health care operations. Your PHI may be used and disclosed by our health care providers and our office staff and others outside of our office that are involved in your care and treatment for the purpose of providing health care services to you. Your PHI may also be used and disclosed to pay your health care bills and to support the operation of our practice.

Following are examples of the types of uses and disclosures of your PHI that our office is permitted to make. These examples are not meant to be exhaustive, but to describe the types of uses and disclosures that may be made by our office.

1. We may use and disclose your PHI to provide health care treatment. We will use and disclose your PHI to provide, coordinate, or manage your health care and any related services. This may include communicating with other health care providers regarding your treatment and coordinating and managing your health care with others. For example, we may disclose your PHI when you need a laboratory study, a prescription, an x-ray or other health related services.

In addition, we may disclose your PHI from time-to-time to another physician or health care provider such as a specialist who, at our request, becomes involved in your care by providing assistance with your health care diagnosis or treatment to your physician.

EXAMPLE: When we schedule you for an MRI or x-ray, we will need to inform them of any allergies you may have to the dye or other materials used in the procedure. If you are referred to another physician for treatment, that physician may need to know of other health problems you may have or medications that you are taking that might influence his treatment.

2. We may use and disclose PHI in order to obtain payment for services. Our office may also need to use and disclose your PHI to others in order to bill and collect payment for the treatment and other services we provide to you. Before certain services are provided to you, we may need to share some of your PHI with your health plan. This will allow us to verify coverage or to obtain pre-approval for studies and other tests that we may need to order for your health plan to pay for them. We may also disclose identifiable health information to obtain payment from third parties such as insurance companies, employers, or family members that may be responsible for payment. We may also share portions of our PHI with our billing company or collection agency.
EXAMPLE: Your insurance company or employer may request physician notes from a visit in order to approve payment for services.

3. We may use and disclose PHI for our health care operations. We may use or disclose your PHI in order to support the business activities of our practice which we call "health care operations". These health care operations allow us to improve the quality of care we provide and reduce health care costs.

Examples of the way we may use or disclose PHI about you for "health care operations" include, but are not limited to, reviewing the quality of services we provide to you, evaluating our professional and business staff, having medical residents or students train in our office, and conducting or arranging for other business activities.

We may also: a) contact you to remind you of your next appointment with us or to provide you with information about treatment alternatives or services that may be of interest to you, b) contact you at work or home to notify you of test results, c) ask that you use a sign-in sheet at the registration desk when you come in for your appointment, d) confirm your demographic and insurance information at the reception desk, e) assist you in scheduling medical services or obtaining necessary referrals/authorizations at the reception desk, and f) call you by name in the waiting room when your health care provider is ready to see you. We also utilize a telephone answering service after office hours. We may also share your PHI with third party "business associates" that perform certain activities for us or provide a service to us. These include our billing company, a management company or a transcriptionist who types our letters and notes. Whenever an arrangement between our office and a business associate involves the use or disclosure of your PHI, we will have a written contract that contains terms that will protect the privacy of your protected health information.

We will disclose identifiable health information only to the extent reasonably necessary to perform the above-mentioned activities of our practice. In some instances, we may need to use or disclose all of the information, while other times, we may need to use or disclose only certain information.

B. You may agree or object to certain uses and disclosures we may make. If you agree, we may disclose your PHI in the following instances. You may object to the use or disclosure of all or part of your PHI. If the opportunity to object to uses and disclosures cannot practically be provided because of your incapacity or in an emergency treatment circumstance, your health care provider may, using professional judgment, determine whether the disclosure is in your best interest. In this case, only the PHI that is relevant to your health care will be disclosed.

1. We may disclose PHI to others involved in your health care. Unless you object, we may disclose to a member of your family, a relative, a close friend or any other person you identify, your PHI that directly relates to that person's involvement in your health care.
